Last Saturday, we were reminded of just how much fun a parade can be. The Brookside St. Pat's Parade filled our neighborhood with people, incredible energy, and loads of green.

When the sign-up form arrives in early January, Casey is quick on the draw and gets our entry returned double-time - so speedy, in fact, that this year we were #11 in the line-up. It was one of our dedicated friends who walks with us every year that said upon our return to the staging area, "That was fantastic! The crowds were so huge, you feel like a rock star...for a whole 32 minutes."

In response to our float, we encountered people shouting that they "loved" us. One woman yelled, "I love the rug I bought. It's awesome in the living room." A young mother holding a child shouted that "your windows are amazing"; a man further down the road told us to "keep up the good work", and on the final turn it was "STUFF rocks" from a contingent of teenagers.

Like most rock stars, we smile, wave and yell "thank you" and "we love you, too" because that's what our hurried pace allows. The only difference is that, when our 32 minutes are up, you know exactly where to find us - right here at home in Brookside in a store chock-full of goodies where every day is different and nothing's better than local art.

Casey is Steve.

P.S. Thank you to the judges who awarded our float 1st place in the parade. It entitled us a spot in the "big parade" on the 17th, but, by the time we heard of our honor, the float had been recycled!!

Ready to be recycled.

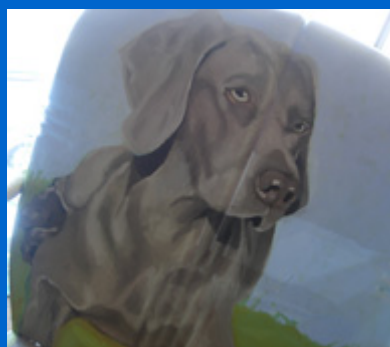

Casey cuttin' it up.

Into the cardboard bin.

Ready for pickup.
