S T U F F

Dubbed "A Store Stuffed with Wonderful Stuff," we really couldn't agree more. Founded and co-owned by sisters Casey and Sloane Simmons, Stuff's mission is one we female farmers take seriously: Stuff is "dedicated to the idea that our lives can be filled with creativity. We believe environments help define our personality. ... Your home, your car, even your choice of coffee speaks about your unique character." Basically, Stuff has stuff to make you, your home and your farm more you.

Stuff offers original works from local, regional, national and international artists; they sell items from "mom-and-pop" shops across the country, and they find collectibles and antiques from throughout the Midwest. With Diva Day, the Wings of Hope Holiday Open House and a multitude of art classes (how to make bottle-cap jewelry, divine handbags, funky bulletin boards and tacks, and more), Stuff has an event for everyone. Everything from jewelry, home goods and purses to art and homemade cards is waiting to be perused as you step through the door.

Another reason why we find this store so fascinating: Its commitment to sustainability. From recycling packing peanuts to lighting with compact fluorescent bulbs and using biodegradable utensils at its events, Stuff is making every effort to reduce its environmental footprint.

So, if you're looking for a unique gift for the farm woman in your life or just a little something for yourself, check out Stuff. We promise you'll find more than you bargained for!
