

Wings of Hope

The Right STUFF

The Simmons sisters, co-owners of Brookside's most hip shop, STUFF, have a personal reason to keep the fight of finding a cure for breast cancer front and center. Their mother and grandmother have both battled the disease. That's why they gladly dedicated an entire day to Wings of Hope, a party dedicated to the fight to cure breast cancer. Sloane and Casey Simmons donated 10 percent of the day's sales and every dollar raised in a raffle (for a much coveted iPod and a $200 STUFF gift certificate) to The Susan Henke Miller Breast Cancer Research Fund. Susan Miller was on hand to meet and greet supporters and shoppers!

Other highlights of the day included beading demonstrations by artists Kari Heybrock and Kelly Johnson, frozen hot chocolate drink samples, cakes by Julie Ann, and STUFF'S world famous champagne punch.

Sloane Simmons, Kelly Funk and Casey Simmons

Dakota Van Deursen and Sommer Howard

Wynne Winter and Lee Winter

Anne Gall, Susan Miller and Jeannie Sheahan

Linda Petty and Casey Simmons

Reverend Catherine Stark-Corn, Spencer Corn and Taylor Corn

Nancy Norton and Susan Miller

Sloane Simmons, Brian Partlow, and Stuart Woody

Susan Miller and Eliot Jacobs

Diane Power and Susan Miller

Carrie Larson, Kathleen Wiedeman and Carolyn Wiedeman